A Neat and New Trick.

A stylish-looking young man, with a light spring overcoat carried jauntily on his arm, a sliver-lieuded cane and a blonde moustache, was shown to a seat street chunch, Philadelphia, on Sunisy. Upon rising during the sermon the young lasty neard a dime drop on the floor. Apparently it came from the folds of her dress and, as the young man's head was averted, she was obliged to pick it up herself. She took out her pures, placed herself, she took out her pures, placed to be cocket in the skirt of her dress.

A few molnutes later the young man, with apology in his movements, left the church. When the collection plate came the lady discovered that her pocket book was gone. In it was a $200 hill, some loose claudes and several Union line borne car "That's a new trick." said Decetive.
